The AoC Awards are a prestigious and highly acclaimed event in the education community's calendar, and this year did not disappoint with inspirational and deserving winners from across the UK scooping the sought after awards.

In total, 50 colleges from across the UK were nominated for awards, 45 of whom offer EDI qualifications. The winner of this year's most coveted award 'Student of the Year 2009' undertook an EDI Level 2 and Level 3 NVQ in Personal Training after suffering a sever head injury while deployed in Afghanistan.

Gareth Philips, Business Development Director at EDI, commented: "We are delighted that so many EDI training providers are being recognised for the fantastic service and qualifications they offer learners. Quality training and qualifications are vital to ensure that people reach their full potential and have the right skills to progress in their career. Congratulations to all of the winners."
